

Saving Face

Go to any random Facebook profile, and in less than a minute you can draw multiple conclusions about a person. Without even scrolling down, you can get their political views, relationship status and their feelings at that exact moment. If you do choose to look over the entire page, there's almost no end to the information you will find: their favorite drink, the places they've been, their favorite quotes ... Really anything they've chosen to make public, which, for some, leaves little to the imagination.
