

The Right Choice

Ready:

“As for me and my family, we will serve the Lord.” -- Joshua 24:15

Set

What does it take to win the game? Under ever-increasing pressure to win, many coaches and players have been encouraged to bend or break the rules. In the sports world, why is it so difficult to discern what constitutes cheating?

In the 1999 Women’s Soccer World Cup, U.S.A. goalkeeper Brianna Scurry stepped off her goal line to make the game-winning save on a penalty kick. While the rules allow a goalkeeper to move sideways along the line, he or she is not allowed to step forward until the ball is kicked. In the championship match that day, the referee did not rule against the save. It is still a point of contention whether the right choices were made.

Making the right choice and acting with integrity becomes even more challenging when it appears that our competitors are not doing the same. How can our players be expected to compete against a team that practices extra days or uses ineligible players or illegal equipment?

As believers in Christ, God calls us to a higher standard, which He proved by sending Jesus to Earth so that we might come to Him. He desires that we act with integrity in every aspect of our life, but He did not leave us on our own to fulfill that call to live by His standards. He provided a way through a personal relationship in Christ.

Go

- What does it mean for you as a competitor to serve the Lord with integrity?
- In what ways can you be an example of integrity for your teammates and coaches?

Overtime

“Lord, I desire to serve You. Help me to make the right choices and encourage others to do the same. Give me the strength to act with integrity at all times. Amen.”
