

Turn To Me

My junior year of college, a young man I knew for only a week came into my room and after 40 minutes broke down in tears. Men don't cry, especially young, proud, college men like Shawn.

Later, after we talked through the issues of life and God, I realized there were more "Shawns" out there. Young men, old men — men of all ages — all bound together by similar challenges and struggles. And no matter where they are in life, the remedy is the same: today's men are desperately in need of their heavenly Father.
