Hockey Chat: April 22, 2008, four teams played hockey knowing that by the end of the night, only two of those teams would be going on to the next level. It was time to shine and give it all. There is no “next game” to fall back on. Time to show the true spirit. It was two “Game Sevens”. San Jose and Philadelphia advance to the next round and for Calgary and Washington, the season was over.

Life Lesson: God has called us to show our hearts today and now. All too often we say that we’ll step up tomorrow and give it a try then. This is the day that the Lord has called us to give our all and be true living in his spirit. There may not be a next day to make up for what put off today. Live today like it is the Game 7 of your life.
